COMMENTARY

The 10-year US Treasury yield rose 4.2 basis points to 4.626% on Friday, approaching a seven-month high, after reaching 4.641% in the previous session, its highest level since May. Meanwhile, the 2-year Treasury yield was slightly lower at 4.329%. The increase in the 10-year yield, which has risen over 40 basis points in December, reflects market expectations for a more hawkish Federal Reserve in 2025. Despite a positive jobless claims report for the week ending Dec. 21, which showed a decrease of 1,000 claims to 219,000, continuing claims rose by 46,000, reaching the highest level since November 2021. Traders are pricing in a Fed rate hold at its January meeting, although sentiment remains shaped by projections for a more aggressive monetary policy in the future, contributing to the upward pressure on Treasury yields.
